A Lively and Prosperous City. New Life Infused in Her Inhabitants. The Investment Company. Commencement Week.

THE BUILDING AND INVESTMENT COMPANY recently organized, affords a fine opportunity for investment. It is thoroughly safe. Out of the 200,000 shares to be placed in this city 175,000 have already been taken, although the books have been open for so short a time.

A week from today the Senior class of Roanoke College will enter upon the final examinations required for graduation. The class is unusually large, comprising twenty members. This is the year for the triennial reunion, and an exceptionally interesting commencement is expected.

The most largely attended exercise of commencement week is the occasion of the contest for the gold medal in oratory, which takes place this year on the evening of June 9th. The contestants from the Democratic Society are: Messrs. Bower, Newberry and Scherer; from the Ciceronian Society, Messrs. Armstrong, Killian and Pence.

The Ladies Matinee Musicals will give an entertainment in the Town Hall on next Tuesday evening.

Amongst the Roanokers that are here today we note Hon. J. Hamp ton Hoge and Jno. S. Simmons, esq. Captain Spindle, of Christiansburg, is at the Lucerne, as is also Mr. G. W. Richardson, of Marion.

Richmond is represented by Messrs. Jas. D. Crump and Jno. S. Ellett.

Congressman Allen's Music.

Congressman John Allen, of Mississippi, in addition to being one of the members of the House, is also something of a "plunger" in society. He was present at a musicale given at the Shorthorn by Mrs. Thurber a few evenings ago, and talked music with a fluency that astonished some of those who heard him. During the evening Mrs. Thurber engaged the Mississippi Congressman in conversation for a few minutes, and incidentally inquired if he was familiar with the study of music.

"Oh yes," replied Mr. Allen promptly. "I am something of a musician myself. In fact, I am so fond of music that I introduce it into my every day life with very beneficial effect. I control my wife and family and govern my entire household with the power of my music."

"I don't quite comprehend you," answered Mrs. Thurber smiling.

"Well," said Mr. Allen, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "it is just like this: When I request my wife or any member of my family to do anything, and they refuse, I threaten to sing. They immediately relent and do my bidding rather than hear me."

He Played Draw Poker.

Hon. Henry Watterson, the brilliant editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, delivered a lecture in Memphis, Tenn., a few evenings ago, the whole gist of which was that the danger that threatens America is plutocracy. "Not material prosperity," said the eloquent editor, "but moral right must rule the world, and plutocracy is moral death, bringing, not perhaps, but inevitably, disaster and ruin to any nation where it reigns." A Memphis dispatch states that after the lecture Mr. Watterson, "engaged with some friends in a social game of draw poker," for which he is accredited with having great fondness, and before retiring from the game had lost $1,000. Of this $500 was lost on a single hand. The editor tried to bluff on a "short straight," which he really didn't have, and his opponent, who had been straight, "called" him, and down went the editor to the bottom of the sea.

F. H. Hofawger, a well-known farmer of Roanoke county, who was recently arrested by a United States officer and sent on by a commissioner to alleged violation of the revenue laws, has been discharged by order of the authorities at Washington.

Roanoke's Population.

Mr. T. M. Haddock, publisher of the Roanoke City directory that is soon to be issued, has just completed his canvass of the city, and the result shows some interesting statistics. Mr. Haddock informed a TIMES reporter that the directory will contain 6,500 names of adults, which is a great increase over that of 1890.

It is a well established fact that there are three inhabitants in a city to every name given in the directory, therefore according to this Roanoke has a population of about 19,500 souls. This is about what it is held to be by the people and as the returns are authentic, it is safe to say that there are that number of people within the city limits.

By wards, the increase has been greater in the First than in either of the others, though there has been a large gain in both the Second and Third.

The United States census to be taken in June will prove or disprove the accuracy of this count.

Th: Procession Was Something Immense

A Big Turnout of People. An Account of His Career. Mr. Campbell's Eloquent Tribute. His Favorite Hymn. The Knights of Honor.

The body of Hon. William Carr, mayor of the city of Roanoke, was laid to rest in the city cemetery yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, with much honor.

The procession was the largest ever witnessed in Roanoke and was ample evidence of the popularity of the man and the high esteem in which he was held. Promptly at 3:15 o'clock the long line of carriages began to move from the residence of the deceased mayor on Lee street. The line of march was down Lee street to Commonwealth avenue, to Shenandoah avenue, to Jefferson street to First avenue to Second street, to Fourth avenue to the First Presbyterian church, where the funeral services were held.

Following are the companies and organizations which formed the procession, and the order in which they came: Undertaker Woolwine; Rev. W. C. Campbell, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who conducted the services; the members of the City Council; city officers in carriages; the Roanoke Light Infantry in full dress with thirty-two men strong; Brooke Lodge, No. 315, Knights of Honor, twenty-two members; Vigilant Fire company, twenty-four men; Junior Hose company, twenty men; Friend ship Fire company, thirty-two men; the hearse with twelve members of the police force as an escort; carriages of friends and relatives.

When the church was reached the military was drawn up on the right side of the avenue at "order arms" and the fire companies and Knights of Honor divided, half being on each side of the street with uncovered heads, and the hearse passed into the church. Miss Maggie Mitchell, the organist, played a funeral dirge. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, and hundreds were turned away unable to secure seats.

Mr. Campbell was assisted in the service by Revs. Boyd, Flippo, Bushnell, Hufford and James. The first hymn sung was:

"I would not live always;
I ask not to stay;
Where storm after storm rises
Dark o'er the way."

Rev. W. C. Campbell then made some remarks, dwelling particularly upon the Mayor's official life. Said he: "Twice has William Carr been a candidate for public favor and twice has he been raised to the mayoralty of Roanoke city by the suffrages of the people. This is not only an honor to the man but it is also a tribute to the city to have such a man as the head of the city government. There is a conservative element in Roanoke that is not set at naught by the influence of any one party, or who work for one to the detriment of all others. They elect a man to office not because of his party relations but because of his inherent worth. The man whose loss we mourn today has been twice elected to fill the highest office in the gift of the city. I am so proud, but I firmly believe that had he lived he would have been chosen for the ensuing two years to govern the city."

"Mayor Carr was elected to office on account of his individual worth, his high character and unflinching courage. So one has said: 'Here lies a man who never feared the face of man.' So it can be said of this man. He was never deterred by any of his enemies. He was a man of great courage. How exalted is that position to which a man is raised by his own worth! It nerves him and gives him power to do what he otherwise would not. Loyalty to truth and allegiance to law were his guiding lights. He was a man of high principles and such a man is one of this world's heroes. Mayor Carr had the respect of his fellowmen on account of his truthfulness and his word was as good as his bond. He had enemies, it is true, and had to stand the prick of public opinion, which every one knows it takes more than ordinary courage to brave, but throughout it all he has maintained a tender conscience and always decided on the side of right. It is a clear perception of the truth. William Carr, no matter how many difficulties lay in his path, was always loyal and never shrunk from the line of duty."

Many men are in the prime of manhood at the age of three score years, but here lies a man the victim of his own selfishness and devotion to duty. There can be no question but that the Mayor's death was hastened by a clear perception of the truth. The most commendable thing about this man's administration of the affairs of the city is the fact that he was conscious of his responsibility to a higher power. It is the fear of God that holds a man, and William Carr tried to do what was right in the sight of the Almighty. He realized that before His throne he had to render an account.

"He was a good officer, tried and true and we find in him much to imitate. May our city be blessed with such men. Roanoke be a place to prosper, not only in material things, but may her inhabitants trust, fear and honor God."

After Mr. Campbell had spoken, the hymn, "Book of Psalms," was sung by special request with such men, favorite tune of the deceased when in life. The services were then turned into the hands of the Knights of Honor, to which order he belonged. The procession then wended its way solemnly along to the city cemetery where the interment took place. The beautiful burial service of the Knights of Honor was read and was very solemn and impressive. As a mark of respect the machine works closed work at 12 o'clock in order to give its employees an opportunity of attending the funeral. Nearly all of the business houses were closed also for several hours.

Between three and four thousand people were in the cemetery at the time of the interment. On the coffin was a silver plate with the inscription "William Carr, aged sixty-one years." The floral tributes were very beautiful. The tears were flowing freely from hundreds of eyes as the coffin was lowered into the cold, dark grave, and the earth closed over all that is mortal of William Carr, a good officer, true friend, and loving husband and father.

Requiescent in pace, and may his soul dwell in that country where the invalid needs no physician and the laborer rests from unrequited toil.

The First National Bank of Buena Vista, Va., has been organized with a capital stock of $50,000. The following gentlemen were elected as its board of directors: John W. Blackburn, B. C. Moomaw, C. P. Jordan, A. P. Moore and John T. Dunlop, of Buena Vista, and J. P. Bell and W. L. Mooman, of Lynchburg. John W. Blackburn was elected president, and B. E. Vaughan, of this city, cashier. The bank will begin operations between the 1st and 10th of May.

Secretary Tracy has refused to allow the Marine band to accompany the Maryland ex-Confederates to the unveiling of the Lee statue at Richmond, on May 29th, as he says the band will be needed in Washington on Decoration Day, though he was assured that the band could return to Washington in ample time for the decoration services.

Don't forget the Estey Organ lead all the others and has done so for the past forty-four years. All other manufactory tries to imitate but the Estey is the best to buy no other. The Hobbie Music company, Lynchburg, Virginia, guarantee lowest prices and most liberal terms. Catalogues free.

APPEALS FOR AID.

Bayou Sara in Dire Distress—Many Breaths and Great Damage Reported.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—Governor Nichols received from Bayou Sara an appeal for a boat to save the people. The dispatch said that unless help arrived there might be great loss of life. A steamer and barges were at once sent from Baton Rouge and boats left last night.

The wind and rain storm proved too much for the Bayou Sara levees. There are numerous crevasses and the upper (old) Morgan levee is broken. Governor Nichols has telegraphed Senator Gibson that the breaking of the Morgan sea levee is so great a disaster that he feels justified in appealing for prompt national aid.

A leak occurred in the left bank near Gardere, ten miles below Baton Rouge. Two crevasses occurred in the Atchafalaya levees, one above and one below Metairie. The water is running over the levees. They make a sad and gloomy procession, men, women and babies. The situation here is frightful. Not a house in town is above the flood.

Terrible Suffering at Point Coupee.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—The Times Democrat's Bayou Sara special says: The suffering at Point Coupee is terrible. It is reported that people are resorting to trees for safety. Skiff loads of people are passing through the streets seeking safety on the levees. They make a sad and gloomy procession, men, women and babies. The situation here is frightful. Not a house in town is above the flood.

The Carr Wants No Foreign Advice.

LONDON, April 23.—Advices from St. Petersburg are to the effect that high Russian authorities view with disapproval the proposed presentation to the czar of remonstrances from America and England against cruelties in Siberia and that the remonstrants will meet with a snubbing similar to that which when the murderers of the late czar were reported to have been tortured in Siberia. The czar is said to be in no humor for foreign advice or interference and to be persistently bent on the reactionary policy which has so far characterized his reign.
